INTRODUCTION

At Valley Bus, our work centers on helping people get where they need to go safely every day. But the people who make up our team often bring that same spirit of service into their communities as well.

In this issue, we're highlighting one of our drivers, Craig, and the time he spends volunteering with Feed My Starving Children. Recently, we had the opportunity to catch up with him during a volunteer event at the Red River Valley Fairgrounds and hear more about why this work matters to him.

CRAIG SUFFICOOL'S COMMITMENT TO SERVICE

At Valley Bus, our team members play an important role in helping students safely reach school each day. Recently, we had the opportunity to highlight one of our drivers, Craig, for the service he gives beyond his daily work.

Craig volunteers with Feed My Starving Children, an organization that brings together communities to pack nutritionally complete meals for children and families facing hunger around the world. These meal-packing events bring together thousands of volunteers who work side by side measuring ingredients, sealing bags, and preparing shipments that will eventually reach communities in need.

During a recent event at the Red River Valley Fairgrounds, Craig joined volunteers from across the region to help with one of the organization's large mobile meal-packing efforts. The warehouse-sized operation was filled with teams working together, carefully preparing thousands of meals that will be distributed globally.

Craig shared that his connection to the work goes back years. What began as a simple opportunity to help eventually became something he has continued returning to whenever he can.

Events like this highlight the power of community coming together for a common purpose. Volunteers of all ages contribute their time and effort to make a meaningful difference in the lives of others.

At Valley Bus, we're proud to work alongside people who care deeply about the communities around them. Craig's dedication to service reflects the kind of compassion and commitment that makes a positive impact far beyond any single workplace.

Thank you, Craig, for the time and heart you invest in helping others.
