

READY FOR A GREAT YEAR

Training, teamwork and a strong start to the school year

Grand Forks Valley Bus employees gathered for a full day of learning and preparation.

A Day Dedicated to Learning and Preparation

Grand Forks Valley Bus employees gathered for their annual orientation on August 19. The full day of training brought employees together to review important information, learn new procedures and prepare for the start of another school year.

Manager Roslyn organized the event and delivered a thoughtful, informative presentation. Her planning and attention to detail helped make the day both productive and enjoyable for everyone in attendance.

Orientation combined informative presentations with an engaged employee audience.

INFORMATION • SAFETY • SUPPORT

Making Maintenance Reporting Easier

Jordan Shaw introduced employees to new and efficient ways to report maintenance concerns involving Valley Bus vehicles. He guided the group through a helpful presentation and then provided hands-on assistance to employees who needed help downloading the app and learning how to use it.

Employees received practical guidance and hands-on support with the new reporting process.

Defensive Driving with Craig Hamblin

Craig Hamblin presented a defensive driving course that was informative, practical and fun. His engaging approach helped reinforce safe driving habits and the important responsibility Valley Bus employees carry each day.

Teamwork Behind the Day

Orientation is also a time for employees to reconnect, ask questions and take care of the details that keep the team organized. From presentations to individual assistance, the day reflected the teamwork that supports safe and dependable transportation for students and families.

Conversation, questions and collaboration helped make the day successful.

“Thanks to Roslyn’s preparation and leadership, our employees are organized, informed and ready for a great school year.”

Another school year has begun, and the Grand Forks Valley Bus team is ready to move forward with confidence. Thank you to Roslyn, our guest speakers and every employee who helped make this year’s orientation such a success!
